Lightweight Title Holder Will Seek Revenge To-morrow Night for His Unexpected Setback in San Francisco

LEONARD READY FOR' BOUT WITH RITCHIE

Champion Expects to Turn Tables on Former Title Holder.

NOT A SLUGGING MATCH

Principals Are the Highest Type of Scientific Boxers and Hitters.

It by no means follows that Willie Ritchie, who received an unofficial decition over Benny Leonard in a four round bout in San Francisco, will repeat the operation to-morrow night in Newark over the eight round route.

A bout limited to four or eight rounds is a trifle too short for boxers of the eleverness of the present and former champions of the lightweight class to demonstrate superiority in a decisive

It would be quite possible for one er the other to score enough points in scientific boxing to entitle him to the decision, but unless each was intent on winning by knockour and abandoned the effective defensive tactics in which each is a master there would be small prospect of either taking the full count.

It would be possible for either to receive a knockout punch if they started in to exchange punches and abandoned their customary caution.

If a title depended on the result there would no doubt be some heavy hitting for Leonard battered Welsh to a helpless condition in nine rounds when he took the title from the Briton, and Ritchle and Wolgast fought terrifically up to the time that Wolgast was disqualified in the sixteenth round on a

On Their Merits.

It should not be inferred that Leonard and Ritchie will not box on their merits, for reports of the California engagement to the effect that Ritchie was a bit shaky in the last round and that pre-viously he had put one of Leonard's eyes

The onlookers are assured of a contest between two of the highest type of boxing experts, and that the encouner will be full of action there can be t the slightest doubt.

There is nothing in the record of

Benny Leonard to haply that he does not put forth his best efforts every time he enters the ring. His knockouts have been too frequent to admit of any question on that point. While some dispatis-faction was expressed over his contest with Kid Lewis, yet there was no ground for the belief that either failed to do h

It would be a bit too much to ask of a title holder when in the ring with a dangerous hitter to forego the usual precautions taken by a scientific boxer. Leonard would have been unwise to abandon his defence and, standing toe to toe with Lewis, trade punches till one or the other temple. one or the other toppled.

Boxers who are lacking in defence naturally resort to punching to win, and they are compelled to depend on their physical ruggedness to carry them through, but the higher class of boxers

Corbett's Unbittable Nose.

Ritchie is but five years the senior of the lightweight champion, but at 28 should be in fine fettle for a physical contest. The Californian has been quite if the Californian h contest. The Californian has been quit as careful in his mode of living as the champion, and has conserved his ene gies. An ardent devotee of outdoo sport, including solf, Ritchie is doubtles at the apex of physical excellence a

He won the lightweight champtonship from Wolgast in 1912 and lost to Freddi Welsh in London in 1914. Since tha time he has boxed considerably, but mostly short bouts.

Willard Unpopular in New Orleans

A prediction having been registered to the effect that the Willard-Dempsey match would be staged in New Orleans, an official of that city expresses the opinion that the Governor would not permit it to take place on the soil of Loudon and matches permit it to take place on the soil of the champion, due to impopularity of the champions and the balked at the size of the purse. For the first time in a decade chief interest in racing this season centres around the three-year-olds rather than the juveniles. That is because of the large number of three-year-olds which performed well appears in competition. performed well enough in competition last year or in trials this spring to warrant the belief that they have a changes to earn the coveted crown.

chanace to earn the coveted crown.

In recent years it was simply a question of which one of a few would win premier honors. This season there are at least a dozen any one of which is lifely to carry off the title. Billy Kelly, the renowned gelding owned by Commander J. K. L. Ross, was proclaimed king of the juveniles last year, but almost a score of trainers and owners refused to admit he was best. All heaped praise on the great son of Dick Welles. praise on the great son of Dick Welles, but each declared that with better rac-ing luck his charge would have proved the champion's master.

Corri Differed With Douglas.

Reports of the bout between Joe Lynch and Jimmy Wilde erroneously declared that Eugene Corri was the reference. The third man in the ring was John Douglas, who is a member of the National Sporting Club, and has officiated at bouts there for many years.

Far from declaring Wilde the winner over Lynch, Corri, admittedly the ablest referee in England, disagreed with Douglas and expressed the opinion that Lynch had won on points.

Corri, in commenting on the contest, declared that Wilde from the contest, declared that Wilde from the contest, declared that Wilde from the contest, and the champion's master.

Some of these claims were justified, but a majority were not. Billy Kelly proved beyond a doubt last year that he was a remarkable horse. He won many stakes in which he displayed the qualities of a real champion—speed, stamina and weight carrying ability. That he was beaten by Eternal in the weak ride by Jockey Sande.
